

A Motel in Three Haikus

By Bess Bateman

I came here to sleep
the light buzzes overhead my ears are ringing

there will be no rest nobody is sleeping here all facing dark pasts

the dry wall is thin every day I can hear them voices with no name