

I. POLICY

This policy defines college educational benefits for full-time, regular, salaried employees, and members of the board of trustees and their dependents. Qualified retirees and their spouses are also eligible for the benefit.

Full-time, regular employees, and members of the board of trustees (i.e., those who meet the definitions of full-time and regular) are eligible immediately upon employment or appointment for the tuition benefit and may register for Salt Lake Community College courses of study up to a total of 10 credit hours per semester, with approval. These individuals are not required to pay regular tuition or regular student fees. However, special fees, such as late fees, special laboratory fees, course texts, or other expenses, are expected to be paid by the employee, as required.

Employees wishing to take classes during regular working hours will need written approval from their immediate supervisor with notification sent through channels to the appropriate dean or vice president. Regular work hours missed by employees for class attendance must be made up on an approved prearranged schedule with the immediate supervisor. If the employee is required by the supervisor to attend a class during working hours, the employee is not required to make up the time. Rest breaks and office consultation hours may not be substituted for class time taken during regular scheduled work hours.

Spouses and dependents of full-time, regular, salaried employees, and members of the board of trustees may register for courses without restriction as to time or number of hours. They will not be required to pay the regular tuition. However, they will have to pay regular student fees, late fees, special laboratory fees, course texts, or other expenses.

Fully retired employees of the college who have completed 10 or more years of continuous full-time, regular service immediately prior to retirement are eligible, along with their spouses, to receive the tuition benefit. However, they will have to pay regular student fees, late fees, special laboratory fees, course texts, and other expenses.

Employees and board of trustees members eligible for the tuition benefit may take Continuing Education courses. They will not be required to pay tuition or regular student fees provided the minimum enrollment for the class has been met. However, they have to pay special laboratory fees, course texts, and other required expenses. The tuition benefit will not apply if the minimum course enrollment is not met.

Individuals in this category are eligible for the tuition benefit provided the minimum enrollment for the class is met. They must pay regular student fees, special laboratory fees, course texts, and other required expenses.
