STUDENT FEE INFORMATION

What Are Student Fees?

Student fees are charges that all students pay when they register for classes. These fees help fund programs, services, and facilities that enhance your college experience—things like student activities, campus events, leadership opportunities, and more. (Note: This is not the same as tuition or course-specific fees.)

Who Decides How Student Fees Are Used?

Every fall, SLCC forms a Student Fee Board made up of students and staff. New members are trained to understand their role in reviewing and recommending how student fee money is spent.

In January, the Board holds public Student Fee Hearings where the director of each fee-funded area, or areas that want to request a new fee, present on:

- How they've used their funding
- Requests for continued or increased funding
- How their services benefit students

Specific times and locations of the hearings are advertised in SLCC Today in December and early January. After the hearings, the Board—led by the Student Association President and the VP for Student Affairs—discusses and votes on funding recommendations. The proposal then goes through several levels of approval:

1. SLCC President
2. SLCC Board of Trustees
3. Utah State Board of Higher Education (final approval)

In early March of each year (after final approval) a Truth in Tuition forum is held where results of the Fee Board's decisions and proposed tuition changes are presented. The specific time and location will be advertised in SLCC Today.

Where Do My Student Fees Go?

Student fees at SLCC scale with your credit load https://www.slcc.edu/student/financial/docs/2026-2027-student-fee-breakdown.pdf. If you're taking 6 or more credits, you're paying the full student fee, which supports a wide range of services and resources that support your college experience (see page 2 for details).
